Comment [A1]: This information doesn't appear very relevant here. It doesn't logically lead up to the subsequent sentences. I feel that this would be more suited to the Introduction section of your paper, where you give a background of your study. However, if this is meant to be the Introduction, then we may have to elaborate on the background a bit more here and make sure that the information provided at this point gives the reader sufficient context for the information shared later. You will also have to shed some light on your motivation for carrying out this study and the methodology employed (Did you carry out a literature review? Did you interview people?).

Comment [A2]: Please check whether this revision conveys your intended meaning.

Comment [A3]: Among whom have these doubts and uncertainties been raised? Among the academic circles? Among the political circles? This will give some insight into which groups are taking an interest in the politics of the nation.
